Candidates Start Whirlwind Drive

Two More Days to Election; Seek To Get Last-Minute Pledges

Mayoralty candidates today prepared to wind up their campaigns, with but two days left in the race.

Saying to reach as many voters, as possible, most of the mayoral candidates made whirlwind speaking tours through the city.

Through their campaign speeches or their support designed to secure the thousands of unpledged voters.

'Vote on Principles, Not Men,' Plea of Carleton L. Brett

Assessing that his campaign is based on principles that have been rounded out by the end, Carleton L. Brett today issued a plea for voters to vote on principles, not men.

He criticized the mudslinging tactics employed and declared that he would not be a candidate for mayor if he were not sure that the voters would not be misled by the tactics of the mudslingers.

"I am not here to ask you to vote for me," he said, "but to ask you to vote for the principles that I stand for."

He said he had the opportunity to see the voters and that he was sure that they would vote for the principles that he stood for.

Nichols Assails Tobin; Raises Ghost of Teacher Job Scandal

Former Mayor Malcolm F. Nichols today assailed Mayor William J. Tobin, raising the ghost of the scandal caused by the sale of the city-owned system to a private company.

Nichols demanded to know if Tobin was aware of the fact that the city-owned system was sold to a private company.

He said that he was sure that Tobin was aware of the fact that the city-owned system was sold to a private company.

Surveying the Mayoralty

The Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, conducting their mayoralty straw vote poll, had one hope and one purpose: THE FREE EXPRESSION OF THE POPULAR WILL.

The poll's final tabulation gives Former Governor James M. Curley a commanding lead over his opponents. It indicates he is the favored candidate. It does not prove he enjoys that distinction.

The spontaneous response to the poll in its early stage provided convincing evidence that the expression of opinion was both FREE and POPULAR.

Later, as the campaign progressed, it became apparent to the experienced men in charge of the ballots that political organizations backing candidates were taking advantage of the poll in an attempt to produce a favorable psychological effect on the people.

It was obvious to the tabulators that campaign machines had collected copies of the Boston American from the homes of hundreds of the paper's readers, clipped the ballots, marked and mailed them to be recorded.

The management of these newspapers knows this method was followed because, although large blocks of votes were received, there was no sign of bulk buying of the paper.

Consequently the poll's results can be accepted chiefly as a strong indication that Mr. Curley's campaign equipment is better organized and, perhaps, more enthusiastic than that of his rivals.

Because of this and because a reasonably accurate forecast of Tuesday's election results is important, the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser are now supplementing their straw vote poll with an extensive survey of the strength of EACH of the six mayoralty candidates in the city's twenty-two wards.

From the conclusions to be drawn from the spontaneous and NOT POLITICALLY-INSPIRED response to the poll in its early stage, and from the findings of the men now conducting the analysis of popular sentiment, these papers believe a more reliable prediction can be made.

THE men engaged in this work know from past experience the kind of ballot that may be safely regarded as genuine. They will consider only that kind.

The expression of written sentiment will be weighed in the balance of impartiality with the spoken sentiment heard from the man on the street and the woman in the home.

The result, these newspapers are confident, will strongly indicate the general trend of the sentiment the voters of Boston will express with ballots at the polls on Tuesday.

Watch for the results of the survey in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

GEN. JOHNSON SAYS:

U. S. Security Tax Plan Sounds Fuzzy

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—If I could understand this social security tax business as it applies to governmental expense and debt, I've been as busy as a bee. I've been as busy as a bee. I've been as busy as a bee.

As last, government receipts from taxes are running above the government's expenditures in peacetime history. The government won't need to borrow. The principal reason for this is the rapidly increasing revenue from payroll taxes for social security—old age benefits and unemployment compensation.

All employers pay as a tax a small percentage of their workers' pay. It started at 1.1 per cent in 1937 and increased gradually to 6.3 per cent by 1940.

The worker pays too. The starting figure for him was 1 per cent in 1937, increasing to 3 per cent in 1940. Finally it will be about 9 per cent of the national payroll. This special revenue, running now at the rate of about half a billion dollars a year, will rise to nearly a billion and a quarter in 1940.

The payments are like life insurance premiums. You pay a part of what you earn, into a fund that is kept for you so that when you suffer the misfortune insured against, you get a lump sum payment or as much every month or week.
